

Campus votes for executives today

Students go to the polls today to elect three new members to the top Students' Society Executive positions.

Candidates for Students' Society President are Taro Alepian, B.Eng. 4, Ken Cabatoff, MA 1, Maximilian Ferro, B.Arch. 6, Jim McCoubrey, B.Com. 4, and Gerald Solomon, BSc 1.

The three nominees for Internal Vice-President are Ian McLean, BA 4, Albert Rabinovitch, BSc 4, and Bernard Moscovitch, BA 4.

Stephen Schecter, BA 3 and Arnold Aberman, MDCM 3 are contesting the position of External Vice-President.

The candidates' platforms have been presented to students over the past few weeks of campaigning in public meetings and in Public Address, a publication put out by the Information and Public Relations Bureau of the Students' Society.

Elections will also be held for positions in the ASUS, CUS, EUS, and Women's Union.

Taro Alepian, the first candidate, proposes to improve the efficiency of the Placement Service, to investigate the possibilities of a Post-Graduate Student House and International House, and to combat student apathy, power cliques and "mud-throwing tactics in student activities".

Ken Cabatoff favours a legislative assembly of students, increased student participation in McGill affairs and a better understanding of university activity by the student himself.

Max Ferro believes that a new spirit is needed on the Students' Council to remove the existing partisanship of its members. He promises to involve the SC in controversies, but not in the name of all students, "be they a majority or minority".

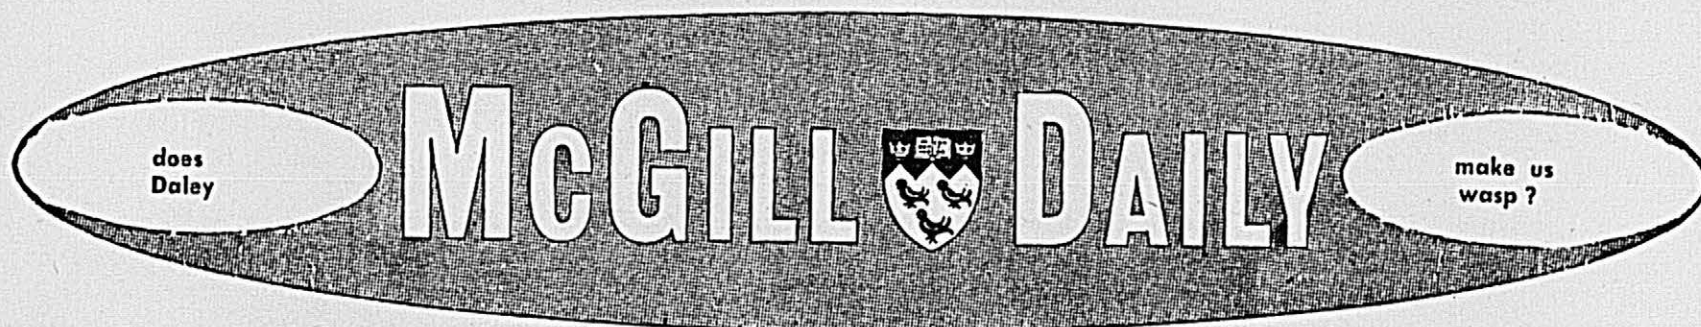

Jim McCoubrey calls for a re-organisation of the SC, for responsible student government, and for clear, decisive leadership. McCoubrey wants a firm policy of bi-partisan reporting in the Daily and continuous consultation of students by the Council.

Gerald Solomon proposes the creation of a student ombudsman, and reforms in the Union cafeteria and building rules.

In last year's voting, 3818 ballots were cast. Sharon Sholzberg became the first woman president of the Students' Society holding a majority of 52.2% of the vote.

All full-time students are eligible to vote for the candidates.

T'WAS THE YEAR: Sharon Sholzberg reviews her year in office at the regular open meeting called yesterday in the ballroom. Miss Sholzberg had kind words for the many "unsung heroes" of the Students' Society.

Quebec grants

Principal outlines talks

The following is an account by Principal H. Locke Robertson of the meeting between a McGill delegation and Quebec government officials which took place in Quebec City Monday.

The McGill committee met with members of the Finance and Education departments for five hours.

The University Committee presented evidence to establish that McGill could not furnish the teaching services required — with the available funds.

They presented detailed evidence concerning the full range of expenditures and the reasons for these expenditures. They also offered an analysis of the funds available.

The university delegation then answered questions from the government committee.

The university committee urged strongly that the recommendations of the Gauthier Commission be followed. They said that the work of the Commission had established the needs of the universities in the provinces and in so doing had taken into account all pertinent factors.

Mr. Cazavan, chairman of the government committee, stated he would review the evidence and make recommendations to Premier Lesage.

Sholzberg reviews the year

by ELLEN ROSEMAN

Students' Society President Sharon Sholzberg took time to pay tribute to the "unsung heroes" of the Students' Society at an official open meeting yesterday.

In her year-end review of Students' Council activities, Miss Sholzberg said that she considered the big failure of this year's administration to be its unsuccessful attempt to fight the $100 fee increase levied last March.

"Most people think only of the sensational aspects of this year's government", she said, referring to the UGEQ issue. "However, we should acknowledge the many people who worked behind the scenes to achieve innovations of lasting importance".

Miss Sholzberg said that Council has often been charged with being "tyrannical, dishonest and double-dealing". But this is the first year, she said, that SC meetings have ever been publicized in advance and open to the entire student body.

She stated that this year's administration has brought a new philosophy of student affairs to the Students' Society. This is the belief that the student has an important role to play outside of the university community as well as within it.

This new orientation has occasioned the setting up of many new committees, she said, and cited examples.

The Social Development Committee was set up and has initiated the Mental Hospital Visiting Programme and Travailleurs Etudiants du Quebec, in which McGill students are sent to underdeveloped areas in Quebec. In the Pre-University Affairs Committee, high school students are prepared for college life by McGill students who print a newspaper for them, and act as speakers and tutors.

The new National Affairs Committee is writing a book about English-French relations in Quebec, and the International Affairs Committee on apartheid in South Africa.

Also set up is the Human Rights Committee to prevent discrimination against students in the Montreal area, and the University Affairs Committee, which investigates education and the administration of the university. This last committee has established two non-credit courses in educational procedures, and written a report about the structure of McGill which was shown to the Senate at the recent joint meeting.

One of the most useful things accomplished this year, said Miss Sholzberg, was the creation of an Information and Public Relations Bureau. This is a group which sends out press releases, and publishes a regular bulletin about the work of the Council and the Civil Service.

Also new this year is the Constitutional Committee which has already held two open hearings to review the constitution of the Students' Society. A Students'

Services Committee is looking into the establishment of bank and housing co-operatives, and a Student Guide Service may be set up to create jobs for students in Expo' and make profits for the Students' Society.

She said that the present administration did an excellent job in accomplishing the move into the new Union, and that despite the increased costs of running the new building, the Students' Society will nevertheless end up this year in the black.

In the matter of the cafeteria service in the Union, she said that a committee will give a report in the next few months which will decide whether a new catering service will be employed.

Miss Sholzberg concluded by saying that she wished to acknowledge all the "unsung heroes" who worked behind the scenes for the betterment of the Students' Society, and she expressed a wish that her successors will carry through with the committees initiated this year.

After her speech, a motion was proposed by Howard Shapray and seconded by Mark Zannis, that said "the Students' Society wholeheartedly thanks Miss Sholzberg for the marvellous job she has done this year". The motion was passed by a majority of the 300 spectators.

The campaign

Now that McGill's financial problems have gone into cold storage for the moment, we should stand back to have a look at the whole picture.

The first thing to be said is that education in Quebec is in the same state of crisis that plagues English Canada. The Bladen Commission Report pointed quite frankly to the perilous future facing higher education everywhere; the Report itself was a product of that feeling of crisis. And recent reports from Toronto point to the same conditions there leading to the same results.

We should avoid therefore talking in terms of racial bias with regard to Quebec's decisions. The future of all institutions of higher learning in Canada is the question at issue. It will not be solved by screaming about McGill's paltry reward compared with that given to Université de Montréal. To do this is to ignore the grant to Sir George Williams on the one hand, and on the other hand to miss the problems faced by both U. of M. and Laval. The entry of Dr. Gaudry into the debate surely has put an end to all talk of racial favouritism.

The public of course may be left with the impression that, at last, Quebec City has taken the "hard line" against the English. And in an election year, perhaps this is the picture that the Lesage administration intends to convey. M. Johnson, having attempted to woo the English vote with little success, now seems to be trying to outflank the Liberals with his alliance with the RIN. Whose nationalism is most nationalistic seems to be the order of the day; and in Quebec, as in many similar post-colonial cultures, patriotism is a sure vote getter.

It is quite possible, of course, that by hiking the grants to all three universities, M. Lesage could give McGill its needed money and at the same time avoid the charge of collusion with the colonizers. This, in fact, is what he may choose to do.

It is legitimate to protest that education should not become a pawn in the game of politics. That it is such a pawn should, on reflection, lead us to conclusions about the nature of our political system rather than to screaming that we have been robbed.

Greenhorns

A University of Toronto sociologist has come up with the unstartling information that many new Canadians, finding it difficult to procure advancement, have taken to changing their names in order to hide their "ethnic" origin. Predictably enough, the names they choose are described in the report as "Anglo-Saxon".

The most common choices of Anglo-Saxon names, it appears, are Kelly and O'Leary.

Who, we would like to know, is the scoundrel leading these unfortunate new Canadians up the garden path? Who runs the office in Toronto, or wherever, that tells Timoshenko he can become an instant Wasp by changing to Tim O'Shenko? Or sells Luigi Orellio on Louis O'Reilly?

Some people just have no values.

More On Forge

Dear Sir,

A review as destructive and as negative as Mr. Goldberg's review of Forge, to be valid as a piece of criticism, must posit values. Surely, even if there is nothing of worth, not even a line in the right direction, in Forge, somewhere, in the annals of literature, there is an example of Mr. Goldberg's kind of writing. Namecalling is of no help in a serious attempt to define literary standards.

Excessive critical bombast can only exist under a misconception — the misconception that the critic writing is absolutely right, and not, like the porridge, just right in relation to his taste. Most of the namecalling derives from the same arrogance, the certainty that only the passions accepted by Goldberg are real. But, intense joy and intense sorrow, the implied "real" passions, are no more valid than the lack of them in Camus' L'Étranger. For Goldberg, Forge is diseased in a typical university-magazine manner and "continually strikes a false note" For Wynne Francis, professor of English at Sir George Williams University, who reviewed Forge on the CBC, "Forge is different from the current rash of undergraduate magazines and it is on the whole an enjoyable reading experience." The realities of criticism, as the passions of poetry, are subjective.

It is easy to agree that literature may contain extreme passion, "tough-mindedness", terror

"reified in the real world". The problem is in judging all literature by these criteria. In the terms of Mr. Goldberg's review, we would discount as puerile, fatuous, and worst of all, leaky, a sixteenth century sonnet, the allegory of The Fairy Queen, definitely Paradise Lost and, probably, Waiting for Godot. Criticism may demand that literature have an effect. It is on dangerous ground when it codifies how it is to have the effect.

In Forge, "Descent to a Temperate Valley" is a case in point. For Goldberg, "parable has entirely replaced reality and the only possible consequences seem strangely inconsequential." For Wynne Francis, the story is "a chilling rendition of the imitation theme, all the more effective for its stark symbolic mode." Terror, objectified in the real world, is one way of writing. Goldberg is right only as far as he goes.

I trust that others will discuss individual poems. As editor I feel I should refute the curious aspersions in the opening paragraphs. And yet, I find them most confusing. They seem to have little to do with my experiences editing Forge. The five changes made on original submissions were done by the author after discussion with an editor. There was no question of "editorial demands" or "emasculatation" since the editors are students who feel qualified only to suggest and the authors are students who are grateful for the constructive suggestions of an interested reader.

I can only think that the snide remarks about format were wild sparks from the fire of Goldberg's critical creativity. The magazine was carefully planned to appeal visually. Wynne Francis sees it positively as "a magnificent job of production", not "a reluctance to get to the literature". Given a magazine like Forge to review, the question is probably as simple as "Do I want this kind of thing or don't I?" The tone of the criticism which results is directly related to a "Yes" or a "No".

Merrily Welsbord
Editor of Forge.

And More

Dear Sir:

I should like to address my remarks to Mr. Kahn's defence of Forge, a defense which is also an attack on Mr. Goldberg's review of that journal.

Mr. Kahn says:

I will not defend the merit of the individual poems. I will claim, however, that the poetry published in Forge 1966 represents the best poetry, on the whole, of that submitted to Forge (italics Mr. Kahn's).

I do not question that this is so; in fact, I think that is the point: the best submitted is not above the level of exercises in writing poetry (the same may be said of the prose), and it should never have left the confines of a creative writing seminar. It was the editors' job to see that the best submitted was also worthy of being published. When editors and writers agree to publish the best of a bad lot, we end up with Forge: each party complicit in the emasculation of the other. The relevant question still remains: on what basis does one justify the publication of an undergraduate literary magazine?

It is difficult to speak to each of Mr. Kahn's points because we do not share the same basic assumptions. The difficulties inherent in his argument are adumbrated most clearly in his last remarks:

I still would like to see some penetrating criticism of the individual poems and prose pieces, which Mr. Goldberg glossed over in toto.

First of all, Mr. Goldberg wrote an essay-review, a critical form with far more general concerns than the proffering of an exhaustive critique of each individual piece in Forge. Furthermore, the criticism of individual poems that he did offer were, to my mind, devastating. What Mr. Kahn implicitly wants — and what he has every right to expect — is a continuous seminar in which writers, editors and other interested and informed parties can get together and argue constructively about specific poems and stories before publication. A reviewer cannot be expected to engage in an exhaustive critique of poems which he thinks ought not to have been published in the first place without obfuscating his central argument and without, in the end, being himself complicit in the editorial view that something should be published at all costs.

Publishing an undergraduate literary magazine ought to be a serious business. The poetry and prose in such a magazine should reveal a genuine confrontation with the real world, rather than a structured emotional conception guided by lines laid down in other literary sources or by emotions justified merely because they are, in the writer's eyes, intensely felt. A student literary magazine ought to confront real passion, real terror, real alienation in cognitive ways which demonstrate a willingness to ask basic questions about the way men and things are put together (including literary magazines) — this instead of maudlin "self-expression", a phenomenon of interest mainly to psychoanalysts and clergymen who, by default, have been thrust into the role of spokesmen for reality. It is a role they fail to fulfill in much the same way that the writers and editors of Forge fail: they operate with premises and assumptions gleaned from the hermetic reality they are chained in and never attempt to question the basic illogicalities upon which that "reality" is founded.

Come One Come All

Dear Sir:

Convocation '66 has found its chairmen. The Women's Union has agreed to take charge of the event. As it is so late in the year, it was found that there was no advertising space available in the Daily to enable the committees to recruit workers.

People are needed to work on the Ball and Banquet, the Twilight Concert, the Baccalaureate Sermon and Publicity committees. Those interested in working on any of these events are requested to leave their names and phone numbers in Room 463 of the Union, between 12 and 2 pm.

Please, with this late start, the combined efforts of many people will be required to make Convocation '66 a success, the committee needs the help of the students.

Linda Finnie
Publicity Chairman
Convocation '66.

Debate techniques out in book form

The Debating Union has compiled a tabulation of debating rules and technique, useful for everyone interested in the art of debating.

The 140-page book differentiates the Canadian and British style of debating from the American style.

The publication is available for anyone who is interested in debating. It can be obtained in the Debating Union office between 1-2 pm and 4-5 pm and costs $1.50.

LA GANG: After work in the basement grotto of the Daily is finished by midnight, this is the group of people who take over at the printer's each night. From left to right above are: Jean-Pierre Lalonde, Yvon Major, Raymond Turcotte, Pierre Chapleau, Paul Dionne, and Raymond Gay. At the left, Paul Dionne works over his linotype machine.

Turcotte, Dionne and Gay are linotype operators and transfer written copy to lead type. Then Chapleau, Lalonde and Major make up the paper in metal chases according to the layout sheets sent down earlier. The desk editor of the night stays with them until all corrections made by the proof-reader, Ron Fleischman, are set and the pages are locked up. This process ends at about 2:30 am for four pages, 3:30 for eight pages and 7:00 for 16. The chases are then pressed into cardboard mats, lead castings are made, and the rotary presses turn out the 9,000 editions of the next day's Daily.

WHAT'S WHAT

DEBATING UNION

Debating teams from McGill performed well at the recent International Debating Tournament held at the Rochester Institute of Technology.

The team of Joel Kreps and Arthur Hister was judged the second best negative team. Hister was named the second best negative speaker and Kreps the third.

The team of Andrew Schwan and Jeff Niewan was judged the third affirmative team.

In the parliamentary debate, Jack Krasny and Gordon Crelinsten came fourth, and Crelinsten was awarded the third best speaker prize.

In another tournament at the University of New Brunswick, the team of Brent Willock and Alan Lombard came second.

President of the Students' Society

TARO ALEPIAN

PLATFORM

1) To initiate a responsible and unbiased student government. 2) To participate moderately in the affairs of Quebec and Canada. 3) To promote individual affiliations with as many French-speaking universities as possible — on a more concrete basis. 4) To introduce an active UGEQ Chapter at McGill, not representing McGillians as a whole but only the individual members. 5) To improve the existing lamentable conditions at the Placement Service (both on a summer and permanent basis). 6) To exploit the possibilities of (a) A Post-Graduate Student House, and (b) An International House. 7) To establish continuity in the struggle for a 'stabilization of fees'. 8) To greatly improve student-Executive contacts throughout the year. 9) To re-evaluate the application of funds in an effort to make McGill the most public-spirited and social university in North America.

PENSKECH

Taro is one of the many McGillians who has had to work his way through college, and as such is closer to the fight for a stabilization of fees and improved summer employment opportunities for McGillians.

A brilliant student, he soon won countless scholarships and is at the head of his class — Chemical Engineering 4.

He has served on many committees, and is currently a member of the executive of the Phi Epsilon Alpha Engineering Honours Society.

As a worker, Taro aims for perfection and cannot tolerate incompetence. He is trustworthy and has integrity (a great asset in present-day McGill).

Committee for the Candidate

KEN CABATOFF

PENSKECH

We, a group of concerned students, asked Ken Cabatoff to run for President because he has the proven knowhow to set McGill's internal affairs in order and the understanding requisite for reestablishing good relations with French Canadian students.

Cabatoff, a McGill National Scholar, was Manager of Radio-McGill when it became Radio-TV McGill, and chairman of the CUS Committee, responsible for increasing its membership from 1 to 65. Elected to the External Vice-Presidency last year, Cabatoff founded the Information and Public Relations Bureau, Student Services Committee, University and Pre-University Affairs Committees, Social Development Committee, and Human Rights Committee; these have given McGill a highly respected name in Canadian student affairs.

PLATFORM

Cabatoff pledges (1) such innovations as a Legislative Assembly to amplify the voice of students in policy-making and assure representativity of the policies adopted; (2) emphasis on imaginative activities appealing to presently uninvolved students; (3) continued involvement in social and political questions.

Cabatoff believes that students have come to realize that, as citizens in a democracy, they do have some control over the society they are a part of. In the university, this means they have some right to determine what is taught them and how it is taught, using such measures as course critiques and representation on university committees. Outside the university, it means that students have the same right to make their views known to government as do chambers of commerce, professional associations, labour unions, or any other board grouping of citizens.

Committee for the Candidate

MAXIMILIAN FERRO

PLATFORM

1) The Students' Council must guarantee to every student an atmosphere of the utmost intellectual, political, and ideological freedom. 2) The role of the Student Executive is to focus student interest through information and debate, and to organize all student activity by unbiased cooperation within council. 3) A dynamic and sweeping program of multi-level joint involvement with French students will be initiated as a positive alternative to political participation in UGEQ. 4) Forums must be held to increase our social awareness, and after due debate, Council will ascertain and effectively make public the division of opinion. 5) Immediate plans must go forward to welcome Expo visitors to our campus throughout the summer of 1967. 6) Opportunity for participation in the Students' Society will be increased by regular Open Meetings, frequent and extensive printed information, and active encouragement of individual contributions and suggestions to a responsive student government. 7) In a Council motivated by service to the student, the seating of the Women's Union would not be questioned, for several programs are organized each year of particular interest to the girls on campus. 8) The Residence Council needs support, not interference.

PENSKECH

We, the Committee, feel that Max Ferro has proved his leadership abilities by successfully opposing the presumptuous behavior of this year's Executive.

We urge that he now be given the opportunity to evolve the hardworking, service-motivated, supra-political Council that we need, and to use his bilingual ability to encourage the kind of personal French-English friendship that will enable the individual student to better understand our mutual aspirations.

Committee for the Candidate

JIM MCCOUBREY

PENSKECH

Jim McCoubrey is a fourth-year Commerce student who will enter a Master's program in September. He has a record of proven accomplishment: Executive Chairman, Winter Carnival; Treasurer, Freshman Reception; Secretary, Scarlet Key; Special Events Co-Chairman, Meet McGill; Secretary, Inter-Fraternity Council; and a member of the Students' Athletics Council. His administrative success has been recognized by the following awards: SAC Executive Award, Students' Society Bronze and Silver Awards, Felt Key, International Educational Foundation Award. Jim is a resident and native of Quebec. He is bilingual and hopes to make his career in this province.

PLATFORM

Jim McCoubrey does not believe that the Students' Council should continue to discredit those it purports to represent by presenting itself as the personal preserve of the power clique. He does not deny that the function of Council is to formulate policy, but neither does he agree that such policy should follow the whims of incumbents rather than the views and best interests of the student body.

Jim McCoubrey will represent these views. He stands for: 1) Effective internal administration. 2) Restatement of McGill's obligation in the community. 3) A responsible, representative student government. He believes that the channels of communication between the administration and the Students' Society must be reopened. He feels that projects of benefit to students such as on-campus employment and discounted air-fares should be introduced.

Jim McCoubrey invites your questions regarding his platform. He asks your support for his program to restore the prestige of McGill University.

Committee for the Candidate

GERALD SOLOMON

PLATFORM

Since membership in the Students' Society is compulsory it should work for the benefit of all students. Since not all students share the same political views, the SC should not involve itself in political affairs. Campus political clubs should be given complete jurisdiction over all such activities. In this way every political opinion would have an equal opportunity to be aired.

In order to provide a more representative council, Solomon advocates:

- a) Proportional and increased representation
- b) A Students' Council ombudsman

The SC's relationship with the Union cafeteria catering service should be that of employer rather than mother-in-law.

The course evaluation committee should be expanded and given greater power over ALL years.

Abolition of CHILDISH rules on card playing in the Union.

Committee for the Candidate

Internal Vice-President

IAN McLEAN

PLATFORM

The emphasis on the external relations of the Students' Society has this year led to a corresponding decline in student services. It is the responsibility of the Internal Vice-President to run an efficient University Centre providing services equal in value to the twenty-five dollars which each student has paid to the Students' Society. I propose investigating further the possibility of a student co-op similar to that at Yale, a library for student publications and a streamlining of bookstore operations. Also needed is an investigation and overhaul of cafeteria services and termination of Burns Catering contract if necessary. The Board of Directors should be strengthened to provide more social events and better publicity for Internal Affairs.

PENSKECH

Ian McLean, a fourth year student in Honours Geography, is currently President of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society. Programmes carried on by ASUS this year such as the Course Evaluation, Tutorial Programme, ASUS News, and the Speakers Programme are a direct reflection of Mr. McLean's organizational ability. He is presently a member of the Undergraduate Relations Committee, and has held positions on the Students' Athletics Council, the SIRC, and was a member of Redmen Basketball in 1964.

Committee for the Candidate

BERNARD MOSCOVITZ

PENSKECH

Bernie, a fourth year Arts student, has had wide experience in various campus activities for the past three years. In 1963-64, he began working for Old McGill in the advertising department. The following year he was Advertising Manager, and this year he is Managing Editor. He was also Chairman of Promotions for this year's Winter Carnival, and was Assistant Producer for the Red and White Revue. All these positions demand both responsibility and organization, and we feel that Bernie has demonstrated his ability to handle such duties.

PLATFORM

We feel that it is the duty of the Internal Vice-President of the Students' Society to make sure that interest in campus affairs is both created and sustained throughout the academic year. To ensure such interest, we feel that it is essential that the Internal Vice-President be someone who is familiar with the workings of campus organizations, and who has had some experience in dealing with the Students' Council on behalf of these organizations. Bernie is well qualified in both respects. We further feel that it is the responsibility of the Internal Vice-President to be at the disposal of all campus activities in the event that these groups encounter difficulties in the execution of their programmes. Bernie accepts this responsibility.

Committee for the Candidate

ALBERT RABINOVITCH

PENSKECH

Beginning as Chairman of the Photography Exhibitions in 1964, Albert was soon elected President of the Camera Club, holding that post for two years and earning a Students' Society Bronze Award. He has written for the High School Supplement and worked on the McGill Daily staff. Albert also holds the position of Armed Forces Editor of Old McGill '66, and is on the Managing Board of McGill Scene. Finally, he assisted with Combined Charities and acted as Lighting Director for English Department stage productions.

We feel that the candidate's accomplishments with the above organizations, plus numerous contacts with other groups more than amply prepares him for the portfolio of Internal Vice-President.

PLATFORM

In an effort to ensure maximal co-ordination of activities and full benefit of the potential of the University Centre, some of Albert's specific plans are: 1) Establishment of a Council consisting of representatives from societies of similar nature according to the following classifications: Science, International, Communications & Publications, Recreational. 2) Expansion of the "suggestion box" into an organized system for incorporating student talent and initiative into the management of their affairs. 3) Above all, efficient management and functioning of the University Centre.

We sincerely feel that the best interests of the students will be served by electing Albert Rabinovitch.

Committee for the Candidate

External V.P.

ARNOLD ABERMAN

PENSKECH

Arnold Aberman is a third medical student. A science graduate from McGill, he has been a university scholar throughout his years at McGill. He was Associate Editor of the Journal of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Interns. This year, he was Chairman of the Lyman Duff Memorial Lecture. He now represents Medicine on the Students' Council. He is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honour Society. Arnold Aberman is an able student with proven administrative ability and a keen interest in the welfare of the Students' Society.

PLATFORM

The central issue of this campaign is the scope and role of Student Government. I maintain that the function of Student Government is to (a) represent the student, and (b) to establish the framework and co-ordination of student activities. The Students' Society, as such, cannot pretend to speak for all its members on non-student political matters.

To this end, I propose the following program: 1) To initiate co-operation between regional universities on a club and society level. It is obvious that for meaningful relations to be established, not only must a handful of student leaders from each university know each other, but students in general should have an opportunity to meet one another.

Committee for the Candidate

STEPHEN SCHECTER

PENSKECH

We asked Steve Schecter to stand for nomination because his background in student affairs is unsurpassed. As Arts and Science representative to the Students' Council, Schecter has put forth constructive proposals, has represented the students on the Principal's advisory committee on student discipline, and was one of the few representatives to inaugurate open meetings with his constituents. An External Affairs Director, he has been Vice-Chairman of CUS, Co-ordinator of the National Affairs and Services Committees, co-chairman of the University Affairs Committee, author of the UGEQ Report and delegate to the UGEQ Congress and CUS Conference.

PLATFORM

Schecter believes that in a mass society like ours, democracy operates through the exertion of pressure on the government by various representative groups. He contends that in an age marked by conflict in international affairs and by rapid change in our own society in Quebec, it is essential, both for us and our society, that we students be heard. He firmly believes that McGill students are willing to speak out when we think our society lacks direction and foresight in its policies. Schecter, however, will not commit this campus to any policy, unless he is assured of both their knowledge of the issue and their approval of his stand.

Committee for the Candidate

Internal V.P. WOMEN'S UNION

DIANE RICHER

PENSKECH

A university scholar upon entrance to McGill, Di, a second year Science Student, is fully qualified to assume the position of Internal vice-president of the Women's Union. She has participated in such campus activities as UNICEF, and the Red Feather Campaign, and has done volunteer work in a home for the aged. She has held positions on the McGill SUNAC sub-committee and research committee and is presently working on the Newman Club Social Committee. Because of her great interest in Student Affairs, we feel that Di can efficiently carry out the role of Women's Union Internal V.P.

Committee for the Candidate

JOANNE WILLIS

PENSKECH

We feel that Joanne Willis, a University Scholar in Honours Psychology, is well qualified to fill the position of Vice-President of the Women's Union.

As a member of the W.U. Executive, she has gained valuable experience. She was Co-Editor of the Cluebook and has worked on the Lounge Committee and Book Exchange. Her executive ability has also been proven as Secretary of the W.A.A. President of the Tennis Club and 3rd year rep to the A.S.U.S. Joanne has worked enthusiastically for Old McGill, Winter Carnival, Blood Drive and Campus Chest.

Because of her efficiency, competence and experience, we feel that Joanne Willis has the organizational qualities necessary for this position.

Committee for the Candidate

CHERYL BUCKLAND

PENSKECH

We feel that Cheryl Buckland, a second year Arts student, is highly qualified for the position of secretary of the Women's Union. She has carried her interest in athletics and student government from High School into University. This year her campus activities have included gymnastics, swimming and skiing, as well as working on the Blood Drive, Old McGill sales campaign and the Treasure Van. She also belongs to the McGill Outing Club. Cheryl took part in Shoeshine Day and the Second Hand Book Exchange sponsored by the Women's Union. She is a capable and conscientious worker and would be very responsible in the position of Secretary.

Committee for the Candidate

Secretary WOMEN'S UNION

JANE EVERSFIELD

PENSKECH

We feel that Jane Eversfield is fully qualified for the position of secretary of the Women's Union.

Her qualities of enthusiasm, organization, and efficiency will be a great asset in filling this position.

She has participated in many campus activities, including the Blood Drive, Red Feather Campaign, Campus Chest, Choral Society, and Interfraternity Debating.

The executive of the Women's Union will gain a valuable addition with Jane's election.

Committee for the Candidate

MARLENE SHATSKY

Marlene Shatsky, a third year Science student, is majoring in Math. Among her extra-curricular activities are the Blood Drive, the McGill 1965 Open House, a member of the Cercle Français and the Psychology Club.

Apart from these campus activities, Marlene has still found time to be active in Sigma Delta Tau Sorority. She has contributed to the sorority as president of the pledge class, and has participated in the inter-sorority debating.

She has worked for the Women's Union as a model for their fashion show.

We think that Marlene would make a very good Secretary for the Women's Union as she is a hard worker and is enthusiastic in her support for it.

Committee for the Candidate

Member-at-Large WOMEN'S UNION

SUSAN KRUG

PENSKECH

By virtue of her past activities and leadership abilities, we believe that Susan Krug, B.A.I., is well qualified for the position of Member-at-Large. She is an active member of the Junior Red Cross and the YWCA, and at McGill has participated in the Red Feather Blitz, the WU Underprivileged Children's Party, and has worked on the Daily. In addition, she is a member of the WU Awards and Closing Banquet Committee. If elected, Susan hopes to: 1) Increase interest and participation in the WU on the part of first year women. 2) Provide more services for the campus-at-large and the community.

Committee for the Candidate

KAREN PEREGO

PENSKECH

Karen, an Arts student majoring in Political Science, has participated in many campus activities. As well as being an executive of her fraternity, she has also taken part in the "Big Sister" program and worked on Treasure Van. In past years, Karen has helped with the Blood Drive and help the position of chairman of the UAC panel. Karen started off this year's activities acting as a Red Feather Colour Captain for the McGill Blitz. More recently, she has worked for the Women's Union and Winter Carnival Fashion Shows. Outside of university, she has also volunteered much of her time in aiding organizations for the blind.

Committee for the Candidate

LYNNE PRIMROSE

PENSKECH

Since entering McGill, Lynne Primrose has gained valuable experience in campus activities that would be an asset to the Women's Union. She is Electoral Officer of the A.S.U.S., and a member of its Constitution Committee. As W.A.A. Rep. to the A.S.U.S., Lynne was Co-Chairman of Sports Day. Lynne has also participated keenly in such activities as Campus Chest, Blood Drive, Choral Society, Curling Club and Intramural Sports.

In her positions, Lynne has many times proven her reliability and efficiency. Because of her enthusiastic and conscientious approach, we feel that Lynne Primrose is more than qualified to fulfill the position of Member-at-Large.

Committee for the Candidate

ASUS President

SIMON TAUNTON

PLATFORM

ASUS is the largest undergraduate society on McGill campus. It cannot be organized on vague platforms advocating combatment of student apathy. Rather the concrete programs established this year must be continued and enlarged upon. The course survey must be expanded, as well as the Tutorial and Speakers programs. Direct contact must be made on the undergraduate society level with French-Canadian universities. Arts and Science representation on the SC must be increased; while the mandatory presence of ASUS representatives to the SC at ASUS executive meetings would also be an improvement.

PENSKECH

Simon Taunton has had much administrative experience in a large variety of campus activities and events. Over the last year he has been involved in most of the ASUS projects, and at present is assistant chairman of the Course Survey. Above all he possesses a drive for efficiency and innovation.

Committee for the Candidate

MELDON WOLFGANG

PENSKECH

A third year Honours English student and president of his fraternity, Meldon J. Wolfgang has demonstrated his organizational and administrative abilities as editor-in-chief of the ASUS NEWS. In addition, this position has provided him with a keen understanding of nearly all facets of ASUS and its problems.

PLATFORM

To insure closer contact between students and their executive, the candidate proposes the establishment of an ASUS Central Information Office. He seeks to establish a Rapprochement Committee with French-Canadian universities in Quebec to discuss mutual problems and goals. ASUS tutorials will be expanded and improved, the course survey will be extended to lower year courses, honours programmes will be similarly reviewed, and the Speakers Programme will be enlarged to attract leading personalities in the performing arts. The candidate intends to closely co-ordinate clubs and societies in the ASUS and also will attempt to provide greater interaction between the students and the administration of the Faculty of Arts and Science.

Committee for the Candidate

SC establishes PR office

The Students' Council feels it's not getting its message across to the Students' Society and the general public and to remedy the situation it has set up a public relations and information bureau.

Leon Gold, director of the bureau, says "too many students are ignorant of the operations of student government." They have no understanding of Council decisions

Publishes paper

The major effort of the public relations bureau is concentrated on its publication "Public Address", a small tabloid-size paper distributed to students. The paper will appear irregularly until the end of the term, and next year will be issued bi-weekly.

In the two issues of last week, the paper carried write-ups of the Students' Council committees and published the platforms of the presidential candidates.

The newsletter is designed to keep the campus in touch with the Council "in the belief that if the campus knows what's going on, the campus can do something about it."

To inform the press, radio, and television media on student events, the bureau has centralized publicity releasing. Gold says the office is strictly non-political and has no editorial comment.

For issues this term, the Students' Council has authorized a budget of $519. The bulletin's policy is to be an "organ of truth."

No competition with Daily Gold states that the public relations and information paper will not compete with the Daily for news. But he feels the Daily is not doing a good enough job in reporting Council decisions to the campus.

The p.r. bureau has no connection with the McGill Information Office, which publicizes the University's activities.

The office of the public relations and information bureau of the Students' Council are located in the Union, Room 411.

EUS President

ELLIOT GOLDENBERG

ANDRES SOOM

WENCE ZENKO

PENSKECH

In his years at McGill Elliot has shown that the Engineers interests are very much his interests. In the past he was president of the Lower Year Council and secretary of the Civil Engineering Society. This year he served as chairman of Freshman Reception as well as the student-faculty committee. He was in charge of ticket sales for the Engineering Week banquet. We feel that Elliot is well qualified for the position of president of the EUS.

PLATFORM

1) Establish a committee of ten to publicize all Engineering events. 2) Increase grants to Lower Year Council to allow more money for smokers, tours, and the Dow Roman Relay. 3) Try to have lower year students working on EUS committees. 4) Initiate a broomball league for winter months to keep up Engineering spirit from the football season. 5) To Provide for a more constructive contribution to the EUS, have the first and second vice-president put on committees thereby making the executive more effective.

Committee for the Candidate.

PENSKECH

We believe that Andres is the best choice for the position of EUS President. He has worked on a number of EUS committees, including the Red and White, Book Exchange, Dow Roman Relay, Plumber's Philharmonic, and Plumber's Pot. He has always been an active participant in EUS activities, was a delegate to the Congress of Science and Engineering Students, and is a member of the Scarlet Key Honour Society. As second vice-president of the EUS Andres has gained valuable experience in the workings of the executive.

PLATFORM

— Implementation of an intensive publicity campaign during the period of selection of EUS committee chairman.
— Increased communication between the EUS executive and the Lower Year Council to encourage more activities for lower year students.
— Continued support and strong participation for the Congress of Science and Engineering Students.
— Revising the EUS Constitution to delete sections concerning Students' Society Awards and defunct EUS committees.

Committee for the Candidate.

PLATFORM

Working in the interest of all engineers, Wence firmly believes in and advocates the following policies: 1) A permanent engineering reporter on the Daily staff. 2) The establishment of a unique engineering placement service. 3) The L.Y.C. should have a voting member on the EUS executive. 4) The L.Y.C. should be encouraged to participate further in EUS matters. 5) Improvement of lunch room facilities. 6) Retention of vending machines. 7) Press for the construction of a new locker room. 8) Work for the implementation of the recommendations of the Curriculum Committee. 9) Promote student interest in the purpose and activities of the CSESQ.

PENSKECH

We, the committee, feel that Wence possesses the integrity and potential to be a respected and dynamic leader. He is active on the Curriculum Committee, a University Scholar, a member of the Phi Epsilon Alpha Honour Society. Wence has proven his leadership and organization abilities as class president and as Second Vice-President of the Electrical Engineering Society.

Committee for the Candidate.

CUS President

JOHN HUTCHISON

MICHAEL LAVELL

PENSKECH

John Hutchison has unswervingly proved his drive and determination in CUS despite his many varied extracurricular activities which included Redmen Rugby. John has competently carried out his duties as Secretary of CUS. Apart from his active participation on the executive, John has shown continuous enthusiasm by assisting with the Commerce Exhibits for Activities Night, and for McGill Open House, working on the CUS Constitution Committee, and organizing the CUS Stock Exchange Tour. John has always anticipated his duties with foresight and efficiency, and we feel that his experience and past record, show him to be capable of being a responsible and successful President.

PLATFORM

Efficient organization; increased communication between faculty and students; more career information through tours and conferences; publication of the Commerce Journal; improved Commerce image; increased budget for these activities.

Committee for the Candidate.

PENSKECH

Michael Lavell in his years at McGill has demonstrated an active interest in Commerce affairs. As well as being Associate Editor of the "Balance Sheet" and playing an important role in the Commerce Open House Exhibit, he was a member of the Commerce Undergraduate Society Constitution Committee. In other areas, he was a clinic chairman on this year's Blood Drive, and is an active member of the Investment Club.

Commerce requires someone who will be able to accept responsibility. An honours student in Accounting and Economics, we feel that Lavell is qualified to carry out effectively the duties of office.

PLATFORM

1) A regular publication of the "Balance Sheet" financed through advertising and direct subsidy. 2) Establishment of a system assigning Freshmen to Upperclassmen with the object of providing information and promoting an early and lasting interest in the Society. 3) Sponsoring another "Pilgrimage" and at least one other similar get-together. 4) Publication of the Prospectus.

Committee for the Candidate.

Spotlight on Hockey

by LAWRENCE HAIMOVITCH

It came as no surprise to observers of the Senior Inter-collegiate Hockey League that Toronto Varsity Blues won their third straight title this past weekend. Neither was it particularly surprising when the Sir George Williams Georgians toppled Loyola Warriors to win the Ottawa-St. Lawrence League crown.

Both teams will have a chance on Tuesday to decide once and for all which loop is superior when they clash in the Canadian College finals being held at Sudbury. University of Alberta will represent the West, St. Francis Xavier the Maritimes and Laurentian University of Sudbury, Northern Ontario in the three-day tourney.

Georgian coach Paul Arsenault is confident that his team will upset the favoured Blues and scoffs at reports that the SIHL is a stronger loop than the OSL.

"They feel the OSL is a soft touch," says Arsenault, "but we're as big as they are and skate just as fast." This is the Georgians' third trip to Sudbury and they are hoping to regain the title they lost last season.

Blues crippled

Toronto Blues, winners of 13 out of 16 starts this season, will not be in top shape for the game. Rearguards Gil Farmer (broken arm) and Bob Awrey (broken nose) will be hampered by injuries, and defence was not the Blues' strong point in the past campaign.

Redmen coach Dave Copp, who has flatly stated that Blues are the best college team he has seen, rates Varsity as almost sure winners.

"I can't see how Toronto can lose," says the coach.

The game will probably materialize into an offensive battle with both squads possessing explosive attacks. Blues netted 120 goals in 16 contests while Sir George bagged 141. Defensively, each team was second best in the League.

If the teams play up to their capabilities, it should be a stirring battle. However, Toronto has to be given the nod on the basis of a more balanced attack.

A breakthrough

Coach Copp revealed yesterday that Al McNally, a goalie at Cornell University, has decided to take the MBA programme and apparently has the necessary marks. Danny O'Shea, Oshawa Generals' star, has also sent in an application, and according to reliable sources, needs only good college board results to be accepted.

This news is certainly encouraging for next season and represents a long awaited breakthrough in the recruiting programme.

Arts and Science team wins intramural puck final in overtime period

On Friday of last week, the intramural ice hockey season came to a dramatic close. Friday saw the teams from the Faculties of Law and Arts and Science tied in the best of three finals at one goal apiece. They had split the first two games on Wednesday and Thursday with identical 3-2 scores. At the end of the regulation time on Friday, the score was 3-3 and the teams were forced to enter into the sudden-death overtime session. At the end of two overtime periods, the score was still deadlocked. Finally in the third overtime frame, Jack Rubin of Arts and Science sent home the winning goal. Other goal scores for Arts and Science were Garth Durrel with two and Brian Pilgrim with the other lone tally.

Much credit must be given to the "Lawyers" as they were the only team to slow down the Arts and Science powerhouse, which had gone undefeated through the regular season and semi-finals against Dentistry.

University Education

THERE MUST BE A BETTER WAY

The University Affairs Committee of the Students' Society is organizing a summer program to study and develop alternatives to existing educational procedures, in co-operation with some McGill faculty members.

The article "Summer Revolution" in Friday's Daily discussed some of the ideas behind the project.

If you plan to be in Montreal this summer and can give some spare time to this project, you are urged to leave your name and phone number for the

Athlete of the Week

The most valuable player on the Redmen hockey squad all season has been defenceman Mike Jenkins. This past weekend, Mike led the defensive corps as the team played their two games with only three rearguards.

Mike, a fourth year Commerce student, is on his first Redmen squad and has had a very successful year. He was recently voted the Most Valuable Player on the team. In his first three years at McGill, he played intramural hockey for Commerce, and his team captured the championship all three times.

Mike, like many others, is very disillusioned with McGill fans. "The apathy is something that seems to have developed over the years. It has become a vicious circle whereby the lack of fan support hurts the hockey team, and the failure of the squad to win cuts down fan enthusiasm."

More games is something which Mike would like. "We practise an awful lot and have too few games. More games would probably entice hockey players to university — that is, those who wouldn't give up university for hockey. They'd be able to combine their education and their hockey aspirations easily."

MIKE JENKINS

Most valuable Redman able Player on the team. In his first three years at McGill, he played intramural hockey for Commerce, and his team captured the championship all three times.

Although he didn't start skating until the age of nine, Mike is no newcomer to hockey. He played three seasons of Metro juvenile hockey — two for NDG and one for St. Lambert — and then experienced two fine campaigns in the Metro junior league for Verdun. His finest season came while playing for St. Lambert. The team won the league championship and Mike was voted the best defenceman in the loop, as well as being awarded the Mickey Macdonald Trophy as the League's Most Valuable Player.

Three Redmen hoopsters rate Eastern OQAA all star berths

by LESLIE BORSHY

With the regular basketball season over, the time has arrived for balloting for the OQAA all-star team.

Although they finished second in the Eastern division of the OQAA, the Redmen's chances for two or three individual berths are extremely high. Shelley "The Shot" Zimmer is a virtual shoo-in for one of the two forward positions. Zimmer's strength lies in his fantastic shot which has enabled him to come second in league scoring with 97 points. Zimmer's high free throw average of 67.8% is another reason for his possible selection.

Another of the Redmen's hopes for all-star team is Bruce Randall. Randall, perhaps the most valuable Redman, has been team leader the whole year, showing the most hustle and determination. Bruce's play is reflected in the league's final statistics. Randall was third in league scoring with 14 points a game, and his 46.9% average of shots made from the floor was second only to a league-leading 47.1%.

High scoring Mike Aneckstein is the last McGill hopeful. After a shaky start, Aneckstein finished the season with 13.7 points a game and a lead Redmen with 69.9 percentage in the free throw department. The Redmen candidates will meet stiff competition in the balloting but many people think that they will make it.

Western women win

by MARY ANN McVICKER

University of Western Ontario made a clean sweep this past weekend to win the Women's Basketball Intercollegiate Tournament.

The Western team far surpassed any other team at the tournament and placed first with three wins and no losses. The University of Toronto team gave Western its best fight but still couldn't top it. U of T placed second, Queen's was third, while McGill came fourth, having lost all three games.

McGill's record for the pre-tournament season was better than the showing at the weekend games indicated. The female cagers came into the tournament with a two-and-one record with Western as their one loss.

On Friday the first game which they played was against Western.

The McGillians were outplayed and went down in defeat. The Friday evening game was against Toronto and the girls went into the game with high spirits and expectations. Disappointment followed as the McGill team outplayed but couldn't outscore U of T, and lost by two points. The team spirit which carried them through the season broke and they lost in their Saturday morning battle with Queen's.

In spite of the disappointment in the results, the tournament was well organized and ran very well. Anna Bilsky is to be congratulated on her good job of organization.
